Welcome Letters

On behalf of Inside Out’s staff and Board of Directors, I’m thrilled to welcome you to the 35th edition of the Inside Out 2SLGBTQ+ Film Festival at TIFF Lightbox.

Inside Out was founded on a commitment to challenge attitudes and change lives through the exhibition, promotion, and production of Queer film. Over 35 years later, that mission remains firmly at the heart of everything we do.

As we celebrate this milestone anniversary, we are reminded of the incredible journey we’ve taken together over the past three and a half decades. This continued legacy would not be possible without the unwavering support of our members, donors, and partners. Your belief in the power of Queer storytelling is what fuels our mission and keeps the screen—and the conversation—alive. Thank you.

For the next nine days, our team invites you to experience a vibrant celebration of Queer cinema, featuring powerful stories from across the country and around the globe. From bold features to boundary-pushing shorts and documentaries, this year’s program reflects the richness, resilience, and diversity of our communities.

We hope you enjoy the program as much as we have enjoyed putting it together for you. See you at the movies.

Elie Chivi
Executive Director
Inside Out

In 2025, our programming and industry team took on two major projects. First, curating Run It Back: a five-film series celebrating standout selections from 35 years of Inside Out. Second, creating a 35th anniversary program worthy of the Festival’s rich legacy. After digging through thousands of titles, we’re thrilled to showcase over 100 2SLGBTQ+ shorts, documentaries, and narrative films this year.

With a lineup featuring over 35 homegrown filmmakers and creators from over 20 countries, we can’t wait for you to meet each and every one of them. Among these powerful voices is The Crowd, a powerful Iranian film about chosen family and community. Shot in under two weeks, entirely self-funded, and made under tight security conditions in Tehran, it’s a striking testament to resilience. Alongside it, we’re screening Parade: Queer Acts of Love & Resistance, a documentary tracing six decades of Canadian Queer activism—a timely reminder of how far we’ve come, and what we risk losing. Though these films reflect different experiences, they share a common thread: the vital importance of Queer spaces, community, and standing up for what’s right.

Over the past 35 years, so much has changed—the Festival, the world, and how we share our stories. But one thing remains constant: the space we’ve created to gather, feel, and discover together. Thank you to everyone who’s helped shape this space—this year, and across the last three and a half decades.

Inside Out

Celebrating 35 years of the Inside Out 2SLGBTQ+ Film Festival!

For over three decades, the Inside Out Film Festival has been a transformative platform for 2SLGBTQ+ storytellers, driving meaningful dialogue and amplifying important stories. The Festival provides a powerful opportunity for filmmakers to showcase their unique voices and experiences.

For 17 years, RBC has been proud to be a long-standing supporter of Inside Out, a cornerstone event in Toronto's cultural landscape. Film represents more than artistic expression—it contributes to diverse perspectives that foster inclusivity and connection.

On behalf of RBC, I want to congratulate and thank the filmmakers and the Inside Out team for bringing us together to celebrate 2SLGBTQ+ cinema this spring. Also, a huge thank you to the volunteers as well who give their time and energy to make the Festival a success!

Michelle Waite
Regional President,
Greater Toronto, RBC

It is my pleasure to welcome everyone to the 35th annual Inside Out 2SLGBTQ+ Film Festival.

Congratulations and best wishes to Inside Out on the anniversary edition of your film festival.

This event brings people together to celebrate the best Queer film from Canada and around the world. As the largest festival of its kind in Canada, this film festival helps to challenge attitudes and change lives through the promotion, production, and exhibition of films made by and about 2SLGBTQ+ people of all ages, races, and abilities. It is a wonderful way to use the medium of film to tell the communities' stories and advocate for social change.

I would like to thank Inside Out for playing a vital role in the social, educational, and cultural health of 2SLGBTQ+ communities and for enriching media arts in our city. I am pleased this festival, which offers an inclusive gathering place for Canadian 2SLGBTQ+ communities and allies, is taking place in Toronto.

On behalf of Toronto City Council, I offer best wishes for a memorable and enjoyable festival.

Yours truly,

Olivia Chow
Mayor of Toronto

This emotionally resonant film follows Cass juggling multiple jobs, both legal and illegal, to keep their head above water in San Francisco. Soon after Cass hooks up with their crush, Kalli, they are asked to watch Kalli’s daughter, Ari, for a couple days. A smitten Cass agrees. But when days pass with no sign of Kalli, Cass worries that Ari has been abandoned, bringing up Cass’s unresolved feelings about their own childhood abandonment. Featuring an outstanding cast, including Asia Kate Dillon and Lea Delaria in a small but pivotal role, Outerlands empowers its characters to have the complex, and at times contradictory, emotions we all experience.

April Ashley and Amanda Lear began their journeys on strikingly similar paths in the 1950s, dazzling Paris’s cabaret scene and mingling with celebrity elites. Both were rising stars—radiant, magnetic, and seemingly unstoppable—until their trajectories suddenly diverged. April Ashley faced a wave of transphobic backlash during a highly publicized divorce, while Amanda Lear sidestepped scrutiny, reinventing herself as a disco icon known as much for her enigmatic allure as for her refusal to clarify the mysteries surrounding her past and identity. Enigma, true to its title, is a layered exploration of two icons, examining the delicate balance of living in the spotlight while staying true to oneself and the complexities of legacy. With sensitivity and insight, Zackary Drucker weaves a story rich with remarkable moments, guiding this journey with the care and brilliance it deserves.

Anand leaves his rural hometown in western India to seek a free and uncomplicated life in Mumbai. However, when his father falls ill and passes away, he reluctantly returns home to fulfill his obligations during the mourning period. He finds comfort in the presence of his mother but is quickly confronted by relatives eager to question his life choices, especially his unmarried status. When he reconnects with Balya, an old childhood friend, who, like Anand, has resisted the pressure to marry, the two bond over their shared experiences and mutual understanding. Yet, as they rekindle their relationship, they must confront a deeper question: can they set aside their families' expectations and create the lives they've always dreamed of? Rohan Parashuram Kanawade's debut feature, which won the World Cinema Dramatic Grand Jury Prize at this year's Sundance, is a profoundly tender exploration of love and personal freedom under the weight of familial and societal pressures.

Spooked by his long-term boyfriend's very public proposal, Lucas flees to the resort town of Canoa Quebrada. It's here, walking the white sand beaches, that he's reunited with his unrequited college crush, Felipe. The tall and tan and young and lovely Felipe, a self-proclaimed professional lover, helps the shy and timid Lucas out of his shell and reignites his feelings in the process. Lucas is forced to decide: will he continue to live life ruled by insecurities or will he succumb to his burning passions? Just like From Justin to Kelly and Mamma Mia, this campy resort musical will have you dancing in the aisles and bouncing in your seats.

Throwing a party for a partner or friend may seem to many an easy task, but not in Tehran, and especially not for Hamed and his friends. As they attempt to throw good friend Raman a going-away party, they do so at the risk of their freedom. Nonetheless, they get to work cleaning out an abandoned garage owned by Hamed’s family, booking DJs, and working on a guest list, but when Hamed’s religious brother appears, they must band together and fight for their right to party. Based on the filmmaker’s own experience with his community and their fight for individual freedoms, the film was self-funded and shot independently over just 12 days. The very existence of the film is miraculous and, as a tale of the importance of the chosen Queer family, is essential viewing.

In the 1970s, disco democratized the dancefloor, putting Black, Brown, and Queer music at the top of the charts. When the industry and some of the white public turned against the genre (“disco sucks”), that talent, energy, and feeling of community had to go somewhere. House music, born in a Chicago gay club, answered the call. Director Elegance Bratton tells the story of house—the parties, the feuds, the exploitation, and the legacy—through the story of Vince Lawrence. As a teenager, Lawrence was at the infamous 1979 Disco Demolition Night and went on to be one of the forces behind influential house label Trax Records. With commentary from Kevin Aviance, Lena Waithe, and other Queer cultural figures, this documentary argues that, “house history is queer history.”

If there was ever a necessary time for an authoritative no-more-shit documentary about the history of Canadian 2SLGBTQI+ activism, it’s right now. Parade is that documentary. Featuring interviews with the who’s who of six decades of Canadian Queer activism, along with astonishing archival footage—including crowds at the 1970s drag balls on Yonge Street—it’s a far-reaching and thoughtful film that should be taught in schools (sorry, not sorry, Anita Bryant). But its heft doesn’t make Parade any less inspiring for casual viewers. If history is repeating, this documentary will give audiences the hope (and ideas and anger and empathy) to carry them through whatever comes next.

Row of Life tells the story of one woman’s irrepressible ambition to defy all odds, a journey that led her from the Marine Corps to three Paralympic Games and 14 Guinness World Records. In 2020, at the age of 60, Angela Madsen embarked on her most ambitious challenge yet: rowing 2,400 miles across the Pacific Ocean from Los Angeles to Hawaii. As if this feat weren’t already remarkable, Madsen became the first paraplegic and the oldest woman to attempt this solo, unassisted ocean row. As we follow her journey, we discover a poetic tale of bravery, resilience, and—perhaps most importantly—love. Throughout her quest, Madsen and her wife, Deb, support each other’s dreams, despite being separated by the vast expanse of the ocean and risking what would ultimately become the greatest cost.

Step into a world where the living and the dead share the stage for one unforgettable night at Babel, a mythical bar pulsing with secrets, spirits, and second chances. This darkly imaginative riff on Dante’s Inferno blends the surreal with the spiritual, the sacred with the profane, and the tragic with the transcendent. As drag queens, fallen angels, and restless souls collide with Death herself, stories of love, identity, and transformation emerge from the shadows. Gala del Sol brings a genre-bending journey into the afterlife that’s infused with dark humor, unspoken truths, and flashes of defiant, Queer joy. Through grief, desire, and glitter-stained resistance, Babel becomes more than a bar—a portal to what we’re willing to risk for the people, passions, and parts of ourselves we refuse to let die.
